

The Contents.

- § 5. Obliquity of Direction, inconsistent with the Nature of Matter, p. 7
- § 6. Supposing Motion essential to Matter, yet it's parts (consistent to their Nature) could only move in Lines Parallel, to one another, and so could produce no Body, p. 9
- Ibid.* That to ascribe to Matter, a power, to change it's Direction, is to make it a free-will'd Agent, ibid.
- Ibid.* Allowing Matter a Self-Motion, and an oblique Direction, yet nothing but fluid or solid Spheres, could be produc'd,, p. 9
- § 7. Allowing Matter, Self-Existence, Self-Motion, and an oblique Direction, yet it could not have produc'd this present System of things, p. 11
- § 7. That Solidity or Cohesion, could never have arisen from one or all of these Properties, p. 13
- § 8. There are several Appearances in Nature, inconsistent with, and unaccountable from, meer Mechanism, p. 14
- Ibid.* Attraction, or the Gravitation of Bodies one upon another, unaccountable from, and inconsistent with meer Mechanism, p. 15
- § 9. All the Celestial and Terrestrial Appearances that have been explain'd, from this Principle of Attraction, are unaccountable from meer Mechanism, p. 16
- § 10. The Production of Animals above the Powers of Mechanism, p. 17
- Ibid.* Animals demonstrated, to be perpetua Mobilia, and therefore above the Powers of Mechanism, ibid.
ibid.

